Marrying in Russia

Marrying in Russia.
If we may judge from an anecdote in the Swolensker Bote, there are many othe Russian empire in which it is no easy matter to get married, owing to the autocratic willfulness of the Russian clergy. A schoolmaster in the District of Jacknow was engaged to wed the daughter of a landowner in the north.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

"THAT NOSE."—We visited Bodie on Monday last, and took a respectable looking nose with us; but on Tuesday returned with it demoralized—the result of a tolerated nuisance in the Metropolitan City of Mono county. On Monday evening, in the midst of a furious gale and clouds of slickness from the No. 1 mill, we crossed Main street and, in attempting to get upon the sidewalk, struck our face against the shelf, between the awning posts, in front of Dan Wagner's chop stand. It was a severe blow, and the time may come when the owner of the property will find that another victim will not quietly submit to the outrage as we have. Two of our Bodie friends met that shelf—one the same night and the other last week. The obstruction ought to be removed, but our nose shall not again be used for that purpose.

Lost in a Snowstorm.—On last Tuesday evening, coming from Bodie, during the severe storm, we found, in company with ourselves, that J. B. Marshall and J. H. Vincent, of Bodie, were off the road and lost within a mile of town. After tearing down two fences, pulling up a post, and driving around for two hours in a blinding snowstorm, we struck a house, and Marshall offered the "small boy" a dollar to tell him where Bridgeport was. The lad took the dollar and informed him that he was in Bridgeport. No more such traveling in ours.

HYMNAL.—On Wednesday last Ben H. Miller, County Clerk, and Minnie E., eldest daughter of A. H. Allen, of the Allen family, were married by Hon. M. P. Wiggin, Superior Judge, in the presence of a large number of invited guests—the best representatives of the county. The presents were numerous, costly and appropriate. After reception, the bridal party departed for San Francisco on a wedding tour.

STATE PRISON.—Harry Lewis, a Chinaman, convicted for an assault to murder a Chinawoman, left on Monday last, under charge of Sheriff Showers, for the State Prison to serve a sentence of imprisonment for 13 years, imposed by Judge Wiggin.

THE WEATHER.—The weather this week has been extraordinary cold—the thermometer registering 22 degrees below zero, at sunrise yesterday, in this office; and 18 this morning. It is bracing weather up this way!

PUBLIC READING.—Mrs. Abbie S. Lovett will give a Public Reading at the school house on Thanksgiving Night, Thursday next, 24th inst. We commend it to the public. See advertisement under "New To-Day."

THANKSGIVING DINNER.—If you want a good Thanksgiving Dinner on Thursday, go to the Allen House and Leavitt House, Bridgeport; and Johnson's Bodie House, Grand Central, Can Can, and U. S. Bakery at Bodie.

APOLOGY.—Two and a half days from the office, new advertisements and the intense cold days are the reasons for our shortcomings for general and local news this week.

SNOW.—At dusk on Tuesday evening a snowstorm commenced and continued for five hours, depositing ten inches of light snow on our streets.

A. B. Stewart, Druggist, Bodie, has drugs, medicines, paints, oils, ammunition and cartridges.

WILL MEET.—The Board of Supervisors, pursuant to adjournment will meet on next Monday.

PROUD.—Bodie is proud of its railroad—even if it does take three hours for two engines to draw four ears 13 miles.

COUNTY MONEY.—On the 12th inst. the money in the County Treasury amounted to $12,255 65.

SONORA ROAD.—The snowstorm on Tuesday night last, closed this road for the season.

PERSONAL.—On Wednesday last Superior Judge Wiggin and wife departed for a few months visit to Oakland.

POTASSIUM.—Potassium is a considerable time in the bodies of animals poisoned with it, and arrests their decay. M. Braune killed a rabbit and a cat by administering to each a gramme of this acid. A month afterward the bodies were found perfectly preserved, the dose being sufficient to permeate the tissues and to become intimately incorporated with those of the stomach.

MARRIAGES.

MILLER-ALLEN.—In Bridgeport, Nov. 16, by Hon. Marcus P. Wiggin, Superior Judge, Ben H. Miller to Minnie E. daughter of A. H. Allen, both of this town.

THE WAY OF THE ROAD.

The Scientific Farmer says one of the anomalies in American customs is that of the driver of a wagon sitting on the right-hand side, while he always turns out to the right when passing another team. It matters not whether he be on a broad, safe thoroughfare or a narrow lane or crowded city street, his seat is the same. Thus situated, it is very difficult to see the exposed wheels in passing, those which require the eye of the driver. Doubtless this is a prominent cause of the many collisions between passing teams, and the wonder is that more do not happen. The custom was brought over by the pilgrims, but, like a Dutch sentence, the parts got transposed in the translation. Across the pond the driver sits on the right, but always turns to the left. In copying the practice we retained the useless part, and changed the essential, for some unexplained reason. Possibly our fathers thought to be consistent in the matter, and, rather than be right-handed in sitting while left-handed in the driving, changed the latter to suit. At all events, the thing as now practiced is very inconvenient, and is a worthy subject of reform in this year when reforms are so much in favor. And since it is easier to change our position on the seat than altering the custom of turning to the right, let us henceforth hand our friends up to the right side of the wagon while we as drivers take the opposite side.

WASHINGTON STR ETS.

A stranger's attention would be attracted, I think, first, in driving through Washington by the smooth, concrete streets, the handsome, queer little Herdies coaches traversing the avenues, and the thousands of children skimming along on roller skates. The concrete paved streets are absolutely as smooth as a floor, and are swept regularly and the dirt taken up as fully as the neatest housekeeper could desire.

After midnight the huge sweeping machines, three abreast, drive along with a whirl, gathering the dirt by a revolving brush, which tosses it into the dust bins under the wagon bed. These sweepers clean perfectly all except a strip a few inches wide along the gutters, and by daylight men with brooms and hand carts take up the refuse, so that the avenues of Washington are really without competition in the whole world.

So smooth and tight is the surface of the concrete that water rolls off as from a tin roof, and during, or immediately after, hard rain-storms, there being no mud and no depressions in the surface, the walking is better in the streets than on the brick sidewalks. The only drawback is that on account of the smoothness horses frequently slip, although specially shod for Washington travel. Washington letter.

THE COAL PRODUCTION.

The production of coal by the whole world, says M. Simonin, the celebrated French mining engineer, is 300,000,000 tons, which, at the rate of $3.75 a ton, the average value at the pit's mouth, represents about $300,000,000 or three times the value of all the silver in the world. Of this quantity England produces one-half and the United States 50,000,000 tons; then, in order of their output, come Germany, France and Belgium. China will produce more coal than England as soon as all her rich deposits are properly worked. It is calculated that all the coal in the world will be exhausted in 800 to 1,000 years; but before that time the sun's heat, which originally produced the coal, will probably, judging from the success attending M. Moncelot's efforts in Algeria, be used direct as the motive power.

AN ANECDOTE OF LINCOLN.

In their "early days" Abraham Lincoln and Wm. G. Green were partners in a grocery store at New Salem, Menard county, Ill. At the breaking-out of the Black Hawk war they sold their store and enlisted for that campaign, both joining the same regiment. Lincoln and Green continued to be on terms of warm friendship until the former's death. Shortly after Lincoln's election to the Presidency, Mr. Green called upon him to offer his congratulations. They talked about old times. "Green, do you remember that fellow who challenged our whole regiment for a wettle, when we were at Rock Island?" asked Mr. Lincoln, referring to the Black Hawk campaign. "Yes, I remember him," said Mr. Green. "What was his name?" "Don't know; I remember the man, but not his name." "Well, you remember I threw him, don't you?" "Yes, you did that." "Well, if I knew his address I would send him a commission for a nice little office, so as to let him know I bear him no malice," said old Abe, with that peculiar twinkle of his eye which those who knew him remember so well. Mr. Green, who is still among the living, and resides at Tallula, Menard county, loves to tell this little anecdote when he meets "mutual friends" of the good old times.—Chicago Journal.

NOT AGREEABLE.

As a rule, the plain, unvarnished truth is not agreeable. Speaking it is not always a virtue. Concealing it is often judicious. It is only when duty calls upon you to reveal the truth that it is commendable. A tale-teller may be a truth-teller, but every one dislikes the character of a person who goes from one house to another and intercommunicates

HOW DIFFERENT PEOPLE SEE THE MOON.

The disk of the moon, as is very apparent, is not of uniform brightness, but is diversified by dark areas here and there. These dark areas are so arranged as to represent the eyes, nose and mouth of a human being, and the whole disk represents passably well a human face. Not all people, however, can see this resemblance. Some who cannot see the face can see a man and a woman carrying between them a bucket of water. The man stands on the left side of the disk, the woman on the right. To some the dark spaces appear to have the same shape as North and South America, as if the Western continent were reflected in the moon. The Tartars see none of these, but their "man in the moon" is a wood-cutter, bearing on his back a huge bundle of wood, and supporting himself with a staff. The Japanese see the form of a rabbit in a sitting posture. His long ears stand erect, and before him is a mortar. In his forepaw he holds a pestle, with which he is grinding rice after the manner of the Japanese. The Emperor Rudolph, who often observed the moon with the astronomer, Kepler, saw upon it the image of Italy. The ancients recognized the resemblance of the moon to the human face, for the historian Pictarch wrote a treatise contradicting that vulgar idea. "Great fools," said he, "are they who think that they see a face on the moon. That which they think they see is an illusion. It is caused by fatigue of the eye, which makes light and shade where there is only uniformity."

How greatly he was mistaken was shown afterward when the telescope was invented. Under the powerful eye of this instrument the surface of the moon exhibits anything but uniformity. It equals in roughness the roughest portion of the earth's surface. Huge mountain craters are scattered over the disk, and within many of these are smaller mountains. Deep chasms and high ridges are abundant. From some of the mountains long rays extend in every direction like streams of lava.

The telescope dispels all these resemblances which are apparent to the unaided eye, but even with this aid not all people see alike. One likens the moon to a green cheese, while another thinks it resembles a body of water frozen over with the hills on its surface, and the craters are air-holes in the ice. Another simile, perhaps the most ridiculous of all, is that of a pot of boiling mush, the craters being the bubbles of air as they come up and burst on the surface. Some see only a cold, desolate, dead planet, incapable of supporting life of any kind, while others see valleys, streams, canals, and other characteristics of mother earth.
